Providing opportunities for skilled volunteers to support the Indigenous business sector

What is JumpStart?

JumpStart is an online platform that matches your skills with an Indigenous business seeking solutions to a problem.

One of the barriers Indigenous businesses face is a lack of access to networks of skilled professionals for ad hoc advice and guidance. JumpStart provides a platform to connect Indigenous businesses with people in our member organisations who have skills and time to volunteer with Indigenous businesses.

If you are a Supply Nation corporate or government member, register your interest today by emailing us at jumpstart@supplynation.org.au and we'll be in contact!

Why should I become a JumpStart volunteer?

- Do you have professional skills to share that might make a meaningful difference to an Indigenous business?
- Do you want to gain leadership skills and build your resume?
- Do you want to learn more about Indigenous Australians and make new connections?

This is your opportunity to make a real difference.

JumpStart provides the opportunity for you to use your professional skills and experience to help support the growth of the Indigenous business sector.

What is my commitment as a JumpStart volunteer?

As part of the skilled volunteer registration process, you can nominate which hours and/or days of the week you are able to participate in skilled volunteering. You will have the flexibility to support up to 10 hours on a project, in-person or virtually.

How do I become a JumpStart skilled volunteer?

It's easy! If your company has signed up to JumpStart, all you need to do is register through the platform to have the opportunity to connect with an Indigenous business owner looking for your skills and experience.
